

Mapping Table

TOEIC Listening

TOEIC® Tests on the CEFR*

Score Range	CEFR Level	Level Descriptors for Listening
490 to 495	C1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • understand relatively unstructured speech on complex topics • understand implicit meaning of language • understand some idioms and colloquial expressions • distinguish between registers • understand discussions or talks where an individual is speaking to a group as in meetings, lectures and presentations
400 to 485	B2	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • understand extended speech and lectures, provided the topic is reasonably familiar • understand recorded material at normal speed • understand main points on complex or abstract speech • understand detail of everyday, concrete topics
275 to 395	B1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • understand main points on familiar, regularly encountered, straightforward topics and simple technical information • understand speech that is articulated relatively slowly or delivered at a relatively normal pace and with clarity • derive meaning of some unknown words from context
110 to 270	A2	When speech is short, simple, slow and clear, test takers in this score range are usually able to: • understand simple phrases and expressions that are related to the most immediate needs • understand the main point of everyday, concrete topics • understand simple directions, instructions and everyday conversations/exchanges related to field of interest • understand slow, carefully articulated speech when given time to assimilate standard language/familiar variety on concrete topics
60 to 105	A1	When speech is very slow and carefully articulated with pauses and repetitions, test takers in this score range are usually able to: • understand basic, simple, formulaic phrases/words on self, family and immediate surroundings in concrete context

To learn more about the TOEIC program, visit TOEICglobal.com

The TOEIC Program

The Official TOEIC Tests Channel

*The CEFR (Common European Framework of Reference for Languages) provides a descriptive context that may be used to interpret the meaning and practical significance of scores on language tests. When language test scores can be related to CEFR levels, and this relationship can be adequately justified, the meaning of test scores and what candidates are likely able to do may be clearer. The mapping information and level descriptors are based on ETS research as reported in <https://www.ets.org/Media/Research/pdf/RR-08-34.pdf>.

For more information about this study, please contact us at TOEIC@ets.org.

Copyright © 2024 by ETS. ETS, TOEIC and TOEIC BRIDGE are registered trademarks of ETS in the United States and other countries. The Eight-Point logo is a trademark of ETS. All other trademarks are the property of their respective owners. SIAS21798.26

Mapping Table

TOEIC® Tests on the CEFR*

Score Range	CEFR Level	Level Descriptors for Reading
455 to 495	C1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • understand complex and demanding texts outside field of interest • understand fine points of detail, attitudes and opinion (implied and stated) • understand wide variety of idiomatic and colloquial expressions almost effortlessly
385 to 450	B2	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • understand broad range of texts including long, complex texts in field of interest • understand key points and detail from long texts in field of interest • recognize registers and styles (i.e., formal and informal) • understand some colloquial language; broad, active vocabulary but difficulty with low-frequency idioms
275 to 380	B1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • understand straightforward, factual texts/instructions on familiar topics/field of interest • understand information in everyday material (letters, brochures and short official documents) • recognize significant points, events, feelings and wishes in personal or everyday texts that are clearly structured • derive meaning of occasional unknown words in familiar context
115 to 270	A2	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • identify specific, predictable information in simple, everyday material (e.g., signs, notices, tickets, menus) • identify the main topic from familiar text (especially when accompanied by visual support, logical structure) • extract key information from texts written in everyday language on familiar topics or related to field • derive probable meaning of unknown words from texts written in everyday language on familiar topics or related field
60 to 110	A1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • understand single phrases and isolated words at a time • understand very short text with visual support (e.g., simple, written instructions, postcards) • understand basic idea of short, simple texts

TOEIC Reading C1 minimum score is based on 45 percent of the panelists.

To learn more about the TOEIC program, visit TOEICglobal.com

The TOEIC Program

The Official TOEIC Tests Channel

*The CEFR (Common European Framework of Reference for Languages) provides a descriptive context that may be used to interpret the meaning and practical significance of scores on language tests. When language test scores can be related to CEFR levels, and this relationship can be adequately justified, the meaning of test scores and what candidates are likely able to do may be clearer. The mapping information and level descriptors are based on ETS research as reported in <https://www.ets.org/Media/Research/pdf/RR-08-34.pdf>.

For more information about this study, please contact us at TOEIC@ets.org.

Copyright © 2024 by ETS. ETS, TOEIC and TOEIC BRIDGE are registered trademarks of ETS in the United States and other countries. The Eight-Point logo is a trademark of ETS. All other trademarks are the property of their respective owners. SIAS21798.26

Mapping Table

TOEIC Speaking

TOEIC® Tests on the CEFR*

Score Range	CEFR Level	Level Descriptors for Speaking
180 to 200	C1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • present almost effortlessly and can self-correct on a wide range of discourse • speak about complex, abstract topics • sustain conversation when speaking in a group one-to-many interaction
160 to 170	B2	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • present clear and detailed descriptions on a wide range of subjects related to field of interest • speak with a degree of fluency and spontaneity throughout speech • adjust to changes in discourse • show good command of lexical and grammatical control with some errors that do not impede the meaning
120 to 150	B1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • provide straightforward description in area of interest • briefly provide arguments, reasons and support of opinions • have conversations on familiar topics • use wide range of simple language
90 to 110	A2	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • present simple, short, rehearsed material/information on personal/familiar tasks, though listening effort is needed due to unnatural intonation and stress • use simple, formulaic phrases • speak about immediate needs • participate in a simple and direct exchange of information
50 to 80	A1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • provide simple, isolated phrases and sentences on very concrete, familiar topics/immediate needs with repetition, slow speed, very limited vocabulary and a lot of effort needed from the listener

TOEIC Speaking C1 minimum score was adjusted from the recommended study value.

To learn more about the TOEIC program, visit TOEICglobal.com

The TOEIC Program

The Official TOEIC Tests Channel

*The CEFR (Common European Framework of Reference for Languages) provides a descriptive context that may be used to interpret the meaning and practical significance of scores on language tests. When language test scores can be related to CEFR levels, and this relationship can be adequately justified, the meaning of test scores and what candidates are likely able to do may be clearer. The mapping information and level descriptors are based on ETS research as reported in <https://www.ets.org/Media/Research/pdf/RR-08-34.pdf>.

For more information about this study, please contact us at TOEIC@ets.org.

Copyright © 2024 by ETS. ETS, TOEIC and TOEIC BRIDGE are registered trademarks of ETS in the United States and other countries. The Eight-Point logo is a trademark of ETS. All other trademarks are the property of their respective owners. SIAS21798.26

Mapping Table

TOEIC Writing

TOEIC® Tests on the CEFR*

Score Range	CEFR Level	Level Descriptors for Writing
180 to 200	C1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • produce extended, well-structured and well-developed texts • write on complex subjects with some degree of effort • elaborate to some degree • use accurate language and efficient style
150 to 170	B2	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • produce a clear, detailed text essay • write on a variety of subjects related to field of interest • use informal and formal register with appropriate vocabulary • use compound and complex sentences that will not lead to misunderstanding and do not impede meaning
120 to 140	B1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • write on familiar, everyday topics • produce straightforward text • produce narrative with use of logical connectors
70 to 110	A2	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • write short, simple sentences on concrete, familiar topics/events • follow basic punctuation rules • use simple connectors (and, but, because)
30 to 60	A1	Test takers in this score range are usually able to: • produce simple, isolated phrases and sentences on familiar topics

TOEIC Writing C1 minimum score was adjusted from the recommended study value.

To learn more about the TOEIC program, visit TOEICglobal.com

The TOEIC Program

The Official TOEIC Tests Channel

*The CEFR (Common European Framework of Reference for Languages) provides a descriptive context that may be used to interpret the meaning and practical significance of scores on language tests. When language test scores can be related to CEFR levels, and this relationship can be adequately justified, the meaning of test scores and what candidates are likely able to do may be clearer. The mapping information and level descriptors are based on ETS research as reported in <https://www.ets.org/Media/Research/pdf/RR-08-34.pdf>.

For more information about this study, please contact us at TOEIC@ets.org.

Copyright © 2024 by ETS. ETS, TOEIC and TOEIC BRIDGE are registered trademarks of ETS in the United States and other countries. The Eight-Point logo is a trademark of ETS. All other trademarks are the property of their respective owners. SIAS21798.26